

Early one morning, as the garden awoke,
The daisies sipped coffee while the hummingbird spoke.
Telling a tale that would make them all laugh,
Causing the blue bells to double in half.

