

Sammy the Snake is a bit of a loner. He often keeps to himself and doesn't make friends very easily.

The recess teacher, Mrs. Cobble, has been watching Sammy for a few weeks now. She spoke with him in the hall one day, and suggested that he join the chess team, which would allow him to excel independently and meet others too.

Do you think Sammy will take Mrs. Cobble's suggestion?

Harry Hummingbird is really terrific, so very polite. One thing though, he doesn't always listen to directions.

Homerom teacher, Mr. Smith, suggested that Harry sit in the front row of the classroom, away from the other students so he can concentrate on what the teacher is saying. That way he'd be able to understand the directions right from the start.

What do you think Harry will do about this suggestion?

Purprilla's a rather bossy gal who's also a health nut. She's always telling others what they should and shouldn't eat.

The cafeteria monitor, Mr. Carlson, loves the great food choices that Purprilla makes, but asked that she not put others down for the things they eat. Instead he suggested that she share her knowledge of nutrition in a report for health class.

How do you think Purprilla will react?
